A God In Which I Do Not Believe

P.J. Deak returns with the Story of Abner Kneeland, Blasphemy and the History of Free Thought in America

In Boston in the 1830's, a de-frocked Universalist-Minister-turned-"atheist"-lecturer named Abner Kneeland was accused by his contemporaries of being "a hoary-headed apostle of Satan"; his magazine, "The Boston Investigator," was referred to as "a lava stream of blasphemy and obscenity which blasts the vision and gangrenes the very soul of the uncorrupted reader"; his lectures for the Society For Free Enquiry were dubbed "infidel orgies" by the popular press and a prosecuting attorney in the courts of Boston argued that "if Kneeland were not punished, marriages [would be] dissolved, prostitution made easy and safe, moral and religious restraints removed, property invaded and the foundations of society broken up."

In a nation where "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness" are espoused as our most precious values, what could one man possibly believe that would bring the wrath of American society down upon him with such fervor? And why were 2,000 people filling the Federal Street Theater in Boston every Sunday and Wednesday to hear him speak? Find out on July 19 when P.J. Deak introduces Abner Kneeland — a progressive thinker who helped open the doors of social tolerance in 19th century America and pre-dated the Humanist Manifesto by 100 years.

Join us at 700 Hartford Turnpike in Hamden on Monday, July 19. Coffee and conversation starts at 7:30 p.m. followed by P.J. Deak's presentation at 7:30 p.m. Bring a friend!

Historical Jesus?

In our last session we learned how the "Four Gospels" of the Christian New Testament were chosen from a large and highly diverse pool of candidate gospels, and how they related to each other, in time and in content. In this session we'll pick up at that point, compare passages from the Four Gospels, and see what happened next. Join us Saturday, July 17, at 2:00 p.m. at 700 Hartford Turnpike in the Social Hall. Come and bring a friend!

Conversations: Belief

Join us Saturday, July 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the library at 700 Hartford Turnpike in Hamden when we will watch a short video of Michael Shermer explaining how the human tendency to believe strange things boils down to two of the brain's most basic, hard-wired survival skills. He explains what they are, and how they get us into trouble. We'll discuss what this has to do with the Fourth of July.

“Paul Robeson: A Biography”

Our next book discussion will be on Sunday, August 1, 3 p.m. until 5 p.m. at USNH, 700 Hartford Turnpike in Hamden. The book we will be reading is “Paul Robeson: A Biography” by Martin Baum Duberman. Note that a paperback edition of the same book is titled “Paul Robeson: A Biography (Lives of the Left)”. Lots of copies are available in Connecticut public libraries as well as in book stores and online. (Browse for libraries at: <http://www.iconn.org>)

Martin Duberman is Distinguished Professor of History at the City University of New York and the author of some twenty books.

Enthralling. . . A marvelous story marvelously told. — The Washington Post

A massive classic deserving of the biggest audience for black literature since Roots. — Kirkus Reviews

A superb biography....History written in the grand narrative tradition. — The New York Times Book Review

It will rank among the finest biographies of any twentieth-century American figure — The Nation

This big, engrossing, empathetic biography by distinguished historian-playwright Duberman is a major act of cultural restoration. — Publishers Weekly
